RATION BOARD SERVICE

To the local ration boards the nation owes a large debt of gratitude. Probably it will never get around to paying the debt, but that will be all right with the boards. By now, after three years of voluntary and, for the most part, thankless service, they are no doubt hardened to the idea that their reward must be the satisfaction of knowing that they have done their bit for the country in a critical time and done it well.

In their hands is the responsibility of distributing equitably those commodities which are scarce. They must understand a mountainous volume of regulations. They must keep the records. And always they must try to be patient and lenient, making allowance for ignorance and carelessness.

This month some 2042 members of war price and rationing boards in Florida, and thousands more in other states, are starting on their fourth year of wartime service to their communities. We offer our sincere appreciation for their patriotic service. They are doing the job, doing it conscientiously and in the American way of democratic good sense. They typify "democracy at work with its sleeves rolled up."—Tampa Tribune.

WRITE IT FLORIDA

State realtors and other organizations are continuing a campaign in Florida to induce people to spell the name in full and not to use the abbreviated "Fla." It is pointed out that postal authorities have always urged the full name, to avoid confusion frequently resulting from use of an abbreviation of state names. But appeal now is made largely on the beauty of the full name "Florida" as contrasted with the meaningless abbreviation.

Printers throughout the state, civic organizations in all sections and many other organizations have endorsed the idea. Let's all write it "Florida." — Titusville Star-Advocate.

AN IRONIC DEATH

Ironie in the extreme was the death of 21-year-old George Lee Lewis, jr., Piedmont, Mo., sailor who spent two years in the Pacific and then came home only to be killed by a bullet from a Japanese rifle, a souvenir.

While he was examining the souvenir, it accidentally discharged and he was shot through the head. Death was instantaneous.

For many years after the first world war, there were numerous such deaths.

The death of the Missouri sailor ought to serve as a warning to returning veterans and to civilians to handle war souvenirs with utmost care.—Lakeland Ledger.

FLORIDA NEGRO PILOT

The Ocala Star-Banner has just published an interesting front-page article about one of Florida's negro heroes in the present war, Lt. Charles P. Bailey, 25, who's visiting his sister in Ocala. Back from 14 months in the Mediterranean theater where he went on 129 missions, he has the air medal and three oak leaf clusters, and wears battle stars indicating participation in three invasions.

As a pilot of P-40, P-47 and P-51 planes he filled up 279 combat hours. He is officially credited with having shot down two enemy planes and has several probabilities to his credit. He has never been wounded.

He attended Bethune-Cookman college at Daytona Beach and received pilot training at Tuskegee. He has five brothers in service—all of them overseas. Punta Gorda is his hometown.

This negro pilot, like many other Florida negroes, clearly has served outstandingly well a soldier, and it is but fair and proper that due recognition has been given to him.—Lakeland Ledger.

tion to fear unfair or unjust demands from such officials as the Governor himself, or men of such calibre as Jim Lee, Nathan Mayo, John English and others who are held in as high esteem and as fully trusted as are any local officials.

Anyone familiar with the present plight of Florida municipalities realizes their dire need for relief. Loss of revenue occasioned by the passage of the Homestead Exemption Amendment has left no reserve for the replacement of worn out equipment. Municipal water plants, sewerage systems, fire-fighting and sanitary equipment are in need of replacement. Service to taxpayers has been steadily curtailed and there is no relief in sight.

Analyzing the Governor's statement, it appears to me more of a warning rather than a desire to ignore the needs of the cities. I am confident that the Governor is fully cognizant of the situation and I believe he is sympathetic and genuinely anxious to find a practical solution and will keep his every aid in that direction.

The question he has so pointedly advanced as to the danger that attends centralized control, be it in Washington or in the state capital, is one worthy of consideration. The Governor has plenty who concur with him on the score and it remains to be seen how the people who make up our cities feel on the question.

If, as the News-Press contends, we are to accept a certain degree of control and the loss of a certain amount of local independence in return for better and more efficient municipal service, better garbage collection, improved fire protection, and the like, then it is up to them to make it, and in ourselves we are convinced the Governor will lend an attentive ear to their demands. State aid for schools and counties has not proved repulsive, perhaps it might really appeal to citizens and taxpayers alarmed and angered by the complete breakdown of their local municipal services.

THE PROPERTY OF SIN

It is a strange and tragic circumstance for a man to abide in sin when he knows better; nevertheless a countless number are in exactly that position! It is a peculiar man who does not welcome the warning sun of a new day after he has tramped the marshes all through the chilling hours of night. And who hasn't ridden a bus all night long and rejoiced with the first streaks of dawn smiling through the morning mists into his expectant eyes?

People are glad to see light! The greater part of our work, most of our play, and the abundance of our living are between the rising and the setting sun. Oh, there are those who reverse their day, who run from dark to dawn, but some people naturally love the darkness because their deeds are evil. Beware of the person who must be out all night and in all day, of the person who seems to actually protest at daylight and prouderly. It is a poor man who would rather dwell in sin than abide in Christ. Sin at its richest is the poorest thing in the world. Why, there's not even anything to hide it with! We think we do sometimes. . . And do you know what has made it so poor?

Look with me to the fifteenth chapter of St. John; Jesus says: "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now they have no cloak for their sin." . . . Jesus came to the world and left man with absolute-ly no right at all to sin. Sin has not even a cloak. He who would try to hide it would fail to the uttermost, but he who would confess and come to Jesus can be saved to his uttermost. My Friends, our life is just like a zero. Did you know that? It all depends where we place it what it is worth. By that device known and I am convinced nothing we can do nothing; and we can do nothing; but place our life into the hands of Jesus and our worth amounts to value un-speakable.

Come to the services at the Canal Point Baptist Church Sunday morning at eleven and in the evening at eight. The ordinances of baptism shall be administered in the morning service. If you have no other church affiliation come out, worship, and pray with us. We have a place for you in our church program.

Governor Caldwell assumed his duties as Florida's Chief Executive this week in a newly furnished office. The old chairs were taken to Bartow as they were personal gifts to Governor Holland when he assumed office. The old desk long in use was placed in another office and a new one procured for the incoming Governor.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Day

The Caldwell Administration got off to a good start. Press and public alike applauded the Governor's inaugural address as sound, sensible and thoroughly in keeping with the campaign which won him the office.

The Governor's picture of an economical and yet not a miserly administration won public favor and because of the record and character of the man who made it was accepted as sincere and dependable.

Florida papers, both daily and weekly, found the Governor's address to their liking. Legislators, likewise, expressed themselves as in accord.

The only note came from the Fort Myers News-Press, long a doubting champion of the municipal fight for state aid, which hinted up the cold water the Governor threw on the question, for the city which he buried it back at him in a fiery blast.

The Governor said: "In our consideration of proposals for increased state aid to local units of government, we must not lose sight of the fact that capital always follows the dollar. History has shown that the smaller unit of government in seeking and accepting aid from a larger, inevitably surrenders a proportionate part of its freedom and independence. Thus we see control over state affairs moving to Washington as the federal government increases its contributions to the states and control over county and school affairs moving to Tallahassee as the state increases its financial aid to its political subdivisions. Let those who advocate state aid to municipalities carefully read the record."

Reviewing the present plight of the municipalities, the News-Press takes issue with the Governor and refuses to view with alarm the possible infringement on, hence state aid to the state aid to communities impoverished by homestead exemption revenue loss.

Admitting that a measure of control has followed state aid to schools and counties, the News-Press points out that there have been few complaints from school and county taxpayers and many from local officials. Such control as the state has exercised it contends is offset by better and more efficient service, which at the end of the day is the thing the taxpayers are most concerned about.

"Tallahassee," the News-Press states, "can no longer be termed a remote place—the officials up there are not strangers to us," and it asserts that should state aid be accorded local communities in the solution of their trying

Cinematic Chatter

By Malcolm Miller

For the Sunday-Monday offering at the Prince Theatre we have "Secret Command," which was taken directly from the story "Plebeek" which ran in a leading magazine and was commented on by the press all over the country. It is the story of the "Plebeek," commonly known as the man who works on the ships in yards all over the U. S.

Pat O'Brien and Carole Landis are starred in the piece, with Chester Morris, Ruth Warrick, Wallace Ford, Tom Tully, Howard Freeman, Frank Sully, Barton MacLane and Robert Williams all doing a swell job in making this the interesting picture that it is. Pat O'Brien plays the role of a plebeek, formerly a newspaperman in Germany but now posing as a fellow Nazi traveler. He is suspected by a girlhood friend, risks his life to avert a plot to blow up the yards, unmask a high-placed official as a Nazi agent, and helps to round up the remainder of the gang. A woman, posing as his wife to avert suspicion of the Nazi agent, and the girl he knew in his boyhood, are rivals for the plebeek's love, with the former winning out.

Tuesday-Wednesday you have a double featured program with the first picture to come to my attention being "Calling Mr. Dent" which stars Len, Chasey and Patricia Morrison, and features J. Carrol Naish, Ramsey Ames, George Egan and Fay Helm. According to the story, Dr. Steele finds his love for his faithful wife turning to hate. During a lapse of memory, during which he cannot account for his actions, his wife is murdered. Her clandestine lover is accused, convicted and sentenced to death. A detective shadows Steele, who has fallen in love with his secretary, in the belief he'll lead him to the real criminal. On the eve of the execution of the convicted man, the doctor puts his secretary under a hypnotic spell. She confesses she married the woman because of her love for the doctor.

Serious I told you who it was. But you'll like it. Second picture up is "Machine Gun Mamma" which stars Arnoldo, the Mexican dancing star, and Al Brendel, whom you have seen in many two reels of the bokum comedy type, and laughed your heads off.

The original name of this picture was "Mexican Fiesta" and besides the two stars it features Wallace Ford, Jack LaRue, Luis Alberni, Tony Warde and Julian Rivero.

The most I can tell you is it will be loaded with slapstick comedy and plenty of music. Double features are also in order for Thursday-Friday with the first one, "Spider Woman" which stars Basil Rathbone, and Nigel Bruce and features Gale Sondergaard. This is another of the Sherlockian stories in the series these gentlemen are making and the "blasted" thing is really "top hole" for mystery.

Betty piece has to do with a wave of mysterious murders, which the police accept as suicides. But old Sherlock refuses to believe such blinding rps and decides they are murders. Well, sir, he unravels the thing when he discovers it is a woman doing the dirty work. Yes, old tapper known as the Spider Woman, who very cleverly does away with her victims. . . and there you have the story.

Second piece up is "Spotlight Scandals" which stars Elly Gilder and Frank Fay. Assisting them in their laugh gathering are Butch and Buddy, Charles K. Brown, Bonnie Baker, Iris Adrian, James Bush, Radio Rugs, Henry King Orchestra and Herb Miller Orchestra. The piece has rather a nice story and is riddled full of good wholesome comedy with a goodly sprinkling of song numbers and plenty of gorgeous gals to put the beauty in them.

Saturday comes "Thundering Trails" with the "Three Mequites" and they say it's a honey for action.

Check any resolutions for 1945! Here's one: I'll make a greater effort to bring Victory to the Allies in 1945!

Years of Leadership

● Tomorrow—magic tomorrow—when our tremendous energy is released to build such a world as few men have dared to dream.

First on America's "must" list is housing—and South Floridians will set the pace in home-building. They will build wisely—in the spirit of the new world coming . . . a world in which today's luxuries will be tomorrow's necessities.

Complete air-conditioning will be a dominant factor in the home of tomorrow . . . as much of a necessity as a kitchen range. As pioneers in air-conditioning in this area, we have seen it coming for a long, long time. Even though for the last three years air-conditioning equipment has gone to the war effort, we have maintained our staff of engineers and consultants for your convenience. They will gladly work with your architect or consulting engineer now toward incorporating air-conditioning and unit-heating in the design of your home of tomorrow.

Already, many Floridians have given their orders to us for Carrier home air-conditioning units, delivery as soon as possible after victory. Deposits are being taken now, and orders will be filled D. A. V., in the order in which they are received.

Mrs. F. M. Wilson, president, presided at the business session. It was announced that Mrs. E. L. Riffey and Mrs. Frank O'Connell have been appointed den mothers in Cub Pack 24 which is sponsored by PTA. The monthly attendance award was won by Mrs. Mary Griffin's third grade class.

Mrs. Louis Cowart acted as hostess during the social hour.

No Colonels For Governor Caldwell

TALDAHASSEE, Jan. 11. (FNS)—Governor Caldwell will appoint no honorary staff colonels, he announced on taking office last week. "Because of the war situation," he said, "it does not seem appropriate and none will be appointed for awhile at least, such action can be well postponed until we are further out of the woods." His predecessor Governor Holt had appointed about 400 colonels.

Party Compliments Mrs. R. Sam Mosley

Mrs. L. L. Stuckey and Mrs. W. H. May entertained at a luncheon at Mrs. Stuckey's home on Thursday at 1 p. m., complimenting their daughter and sister, Mrs. R. Sam Mosley who is leaving Pahokee to join her husband, Capt. R. S. Mosley of the U. S. Army Medical Corps, at Atlanta, Ga., where they will make their home while he is stationed at the Fort McPherson Hospital there.

A brief program was presented by Mrs. Orr Baron, pianist, and Miss Shirley Watson who gave several readings.

ROYAL SERVICE

The Pahokee First Baptist WMU conducted a royal service program at the church Monday afternoon with Miss Elizabeth Caraway presenting the program theme, "Working Together for a Century." Ways of "Concentrating the Centennial to Christ" were explained by Miss Caraway, Mrs. W. A. Stevens, Mrs. J. W. Strickland, Mrs. G. C. Connelley, Mrs. Margaret Thompson, Mrs. Stella Mullis and Mrs. L. M. Mullis. Mrs. J. E. Unwin and Mrs. W. H. Keyes assisted in the devotional program.

Plans were made to conduct two division study classes at a later date with Mrs. W. M. DuBoise, mission study leader, in charge.

Beauty Will Sell Florida Tangerines

WINTER HAVEN, Jan. 11. (FNS)—One of the biggest promotions in the history of the tangerine industry got under way this week when "Queen Tangerine" arrived in New York for a round of events and tours which will see her distributing fruit and suggestions for its use among the trade and fruit editors.

The Queen, Miss Nonita Cuesta, 29 year old vivacious brunette of Tampa, is a junior majoring in English at Rollins College, Winter Park, sponsored by the Orlando Rotary Club, and was recently chosen the winner of a beauty contest held at Cypress Gardens, to become Florida's first "Tangerine Queen."

The Queen, accompanied by Mrs. Queen B. Patterson, a member of the staff of Rollins College, as chaperone, departed on the Seaboard "Silver Meteor" last week end and will attend a reception at the Pennsylvania Hotel arranged by the Food Machinery Company, where she will meet the editors of many trade publications. Miss "Flavoraest", prominent at all trade functions, will be hostess on this occasion.

Prior to the party she will visit the famed Powers Studios where John Robert Powers, world authority on beautiful women, will interview her and determine her qualifications for a career as a model.

SOME KIND OF RECORD
